

ADAM "A.E." FLETCHER

WRITER/DIRECTOR

A.E. Fletcher is a South Jersey born Writer/Director on the move. His short film, "Marie Claire," won the Best New Wave Short Award at the 2016 Mediterranean Film Festival Cannes. It was inspired by the 60's French New Wave Movement. Adam's feature spec script, "Old Flames," received 7/10 ratings from Black List reviewers and was a 2nd round qualifier for the Austin Film Festival 2017 Screenplay competition. Notable about Adam is his wealth of knowledge in the Comic Book, Science Fiction, Game, and Horror genres and his many story ideas. Adam spent his summers growing up in central Maine near many of the settings/towns in Stephen King's stories, another strong influence on him. His father imparted a love of film trivia, and movie magic that began with the Republic Movie Serials of the 1930s & 40s, and continued through "New Hollywood", the "Amblin Era", and beyond. He began creating in his teens with short films, music videos, and hosting his own talk show.
