

ADAM "A.E." FLETCHER

WRITER/DIRECTOR

<https://www.ofdistantlands.com/>

A.E. Fletcher is a South Jersey born Writer/Director on the rise. He began creating in his teens with short films, music videos, and hosting his own talk show. His short film, "Marie Claire," won the Best New Wave Short Award at the 2016 Mediterranean Film Festival Cannes and an Award of Recognition at the Accolade Global Film Competition 2018. It was inspired by the 60's French New Wave Movement. Adam's father imparted a love of films, film trivia, and movie magic that began with the Republic Movie Serials of the 1930s & 40s, and continued through "New Hollywood," and the "Amblin Era." Adam's feature spec script, "Old Flames," received 7/10 ratings from Black List reviewers and was a 2nd round qualifier for the 2017 Austin Film Festival Screenplay competition. Adam has recently published his first adventure novel: Distant Lands: Of Sand & the Men Who Died There. Notable about Adam is his wealth of knowledge in the Comic Book, Science Fiction, Game, and Horror genres. Early inspirations include Stephen King and Will Smith.
